ECB Makes U-Turn; Launches Fresh Stimulus Program

Less than three months after winding up its last major round of monetary easing, the European Central Bank has announced yet a new round of cheap loans to European banks amid lower economic and inflation growth forecasts. The new stimulus efforts also include maintaining subzero interest rate targets throughout 2019. (WSJ)

BREXIT: Day of Reckoning or Delay?

We are entering the final stretch before the March 29 Brexit deadline. Investors will be watching closely as the latest round of Brexit negotiations wrap up this weekend ahead of this Tuesday's vote by the UK Parliament. However, there is a growing belief that the deadline will be delayed. And if so, European ETFs could rise. (Zacks)

WEAK: U.S. Jobs Reports Surprises to Downside

U.S. stock prices tumbled on Friday, sparked by news that the U.S. economy added just 20,000 new jobs in February, well below expectations of 180,000. The “surprise” labor slowdown further adds to growing concerns of a deeper economic slowdown in the U.S. and abroad. (MarketWatch)

S&P 500 Index - Commentary

The S&P 500 index crossed below its 200 DMA line just a few weeks after retaking it earlier last month after an onslaught of poor economic news sent U.S. stocks tumbling in a 5-day losing streak. It was the worst week so far this year for stocks. The selloff intensified after a dismal jobs report released on Friday revealed that the U.S. economy only added 20,000 jobs in the month of February, well below an expected 180,000. Last week's selloff came on the strongest volume levels seen in about five weeks, suggesting that more volatility may lie ahead. Now, not only does the S&P 500 have to deal with a hefty overhead range between $2800-$2875, the 200 DMA will also serve as new near-term resistance for the major U.S. index moving into next week and beyond.

For now, traders should note immediate overhead resistance at the 200 DMA and the $2800-$2875 range.

VIDEO: Screening For Profits With Finviz

In this month's Platinum members-only Mastermind call, Jerry Robinson delves deep into one of his personal favorite online trading tools: Finviz

Watch the replay now!

Platinum Member Jeffrey P. reported a 17% gain in one week using the strategies discussed in this teaching. Way to go Jeffrey!

The screenshot shows the Finviz Elite stock screener interface. The top navigation bar includes "Home", "News", "Screeners", "Maps", "Groups", "Portfolio", "Insider", "Futures", "Forex", "Crypto", and "Backtests Elite". Below the navigation bar, there are tabs for "My Presets", "Order", "Ticker", "Asc", "Signal", and "None (all)". The main area is divided into "Filters" and "Results". The "Filters" section has multiple columns for "Exchange", "Market Cap", "P/E", "EPS growth", "Dividend Yield", "Quick Ratio", "Net Profit Margin", "Institutional Transactions", "Performance", "20-Day Simple Moving Average", "20-Day High/Low", "Beta", and "Price". Each filter has a dropdown menu with various options. The "Results" section shows a table of stocks with columns for "No.", "Ticker", "Company", "Sector", and "Industry". The table lists 20 stocks, including Agilent Technologies, Alcoa Corporation, Barrick Gold, and others.
