2018 U.S. GDP Growth Fails To Reach Promised 3%

The Commerce Dept's Bureau of Economic Analysis reports 2018 GDP growth at 2.9%, just shy of the 3% growth rate promised by Washington. Most economists now agree that GDP growth in 2019 and beyond will be even lower with Q1 growth forecasts coming in at just 0.3%. (WSJ)

2018 U.S. Trade Deficit Set to Reach Historic High

Even after slapping massive trade restrictions on friends and foes alike over the past year, a new Census Bureau report this week is likely to show that the U.S. notched its largest annual trade deficit in history last year. Stay tuned.

INSANE: U.S. Hits Debt Ceiling with $22T National Debt

As of Saturday, the U.S. officially hit its self-imposed debt ceiling with over $22 trillion in national debt. “While the country can't add to the debt load until the ceiling is either raised or suspended by Congress, the Treasury Department can use its "extraordinary measures" to move funds around and prevent a breach of the ceiling for a few more months.” (Business Insider)

Amazon.com To Expand Into U.S. Grocery Business

On Friday, Amazon announced plans to open dozens of grocery stores, distinct from its Whole Foods chain, in several major cities across the U.S. The stock is currently consolidating just below a flat 200 DMA. (Barron's)

S&P 500 Index - Commentary

The S&P 500 index edged higher last week, reclaiming the key $2800 level for the first time since November against a backdrop of ongoing economic concerns and geopolitical tensions. All told, the closely-watched index rose 0.46% on the week on moderate volume.

Investors are watching several global developments closely, including:

- The U.S-China trade deal, which is expected to be wound up sometime by mid-March
- A wary Federal Reserve, which has suggested no further rate hikes or other policy tightening measures in the near-term
- A recent skirmish between India and Pakistan, which appears to be waning

For now, traders should note immediate overhead resistance in the $2800-$2875 range.
