Trump Unveils $4.7 Trillion Spending Plan in 2020

In Washington's latest bad joke upon the people of these United States, it unveiled its "Budget for a Better America" (note "great" has been replaced with "better") with a plan to spend $4.7 trillion while only taking in $3.6 trillion in revenue in fiscal year 2020. Taxpayers should get used to trillion dollar deficits as they are projected annually until 2022!

Next Fed Policy Meeting This Week

The Federal Reserve will meet again this week for their latest interest rate policy meeting and will announce their rate decision at 2pm EST on Wednesday. As usual, the announcement will be followed by a press conference. While there is no expectation of an interest rate change, traders should still use caution around this meeting as there are few people in the world who can shake the market like the Federal Reserve chief. Be advised.

Cannabis Products Coming to Whole Foods?

During a recent conversation hosted by The Texas Tribune, Whole Foods CEO John Mackey brought up the topic of marijuana as a potential item for sale in the nationwide store chain, stating: “If cannabis is ever passed in Texas, chances are good that grocery stores will be selling that too,” he said. “You just never know what happens over time with markets. They change and evolve.”

When major U.S. corporations begin talking openly and casually about cannabis, you know that prohibition is nearly over. (MSN)

Since It Can't Compete on 5G, U.S. Turns to Threats

As the U.S. seeks to rev up its domestic coal market, China is choosing to live in the 21st century, taking a massive lead in renewable energy, robotics, as well as the next-generation wireless technology known as 5G. Alarmed at the breakneck pace of Chinese innovation, Washington has turned to a policy of demonization of China and its aims, recently threatening fellow ally Germany that it will cut off intelligence sharing if the Germans choose to employ Chinese tech in moving into the 21st century with 5G.

It's another desperate attempt at stopping the inevitable rise of China.

S&P 500 Index - Commentary

The S&P 500 index rallied again on Friday enjoying its best week since November, led by technology, energy, and healthcare stocks. The closely-watched index ended the week at $2822, piercing, and closing, above a key resistance level near $2815. While the momentum for the S&P 500 appears solid, a close above $2875 will signal that the bulls are firmly back in control of this rally.

Until now, volume levels have been paltry in the 2019 rally. However, Friday's volume on the index came in a little less than two times the average trading volume, due to a major rebalancing event known as a "quad-witching" day. Traders should ignore this volume. Keep reading

Platinum Member Jeffrey P. reported a 17% gain in one week using the strategies discussed in this teaching. Way to go Jeffrey!

The screenshot shows the Finviz Elite stock screener interface. The top navigation bar includes "Home", "News", "Screeners", "Maps", "Groups", "Portfolio", "Insider", "Futures", "Forex", "Crypto", and "Backtests Elite". Below the navigation bar, there are tabs for "My Presets", "Order", "Ticker", "Asc", "Signal", and "None (all)". The main area is divided into "Filters" and "Results". The "Filters" section has multiple columns for "Exchange", "Market Cap", "P/E", "EPS growth", "Dividend Yield", "Quick Ratio", "Net Profit Margin", "Institutional Transactions", "Performance", "20-Day Simple Moving Average", "20-Day High/Low", "Beta", and "Price". Each filter has a dropdown menu with various options. The "Results" section shows a table of stocks with columns for "No.", "Ticker", "Company", "Sector", and "Industry". The table lists 20 stocks, including Agilent Technologies, Alcoa Corporation, Barrick Gold, and others.
