Facebook To Launch Cryptocurrency Payment System

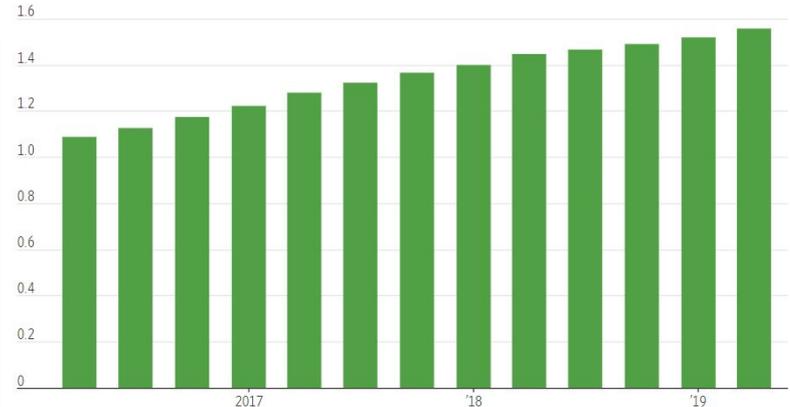

According to a new report, Facebook is “recruiting dozens of financial firms and online merchants to help launch a cryptocurrency-based payments system on the back of its gigantic social network.” If the plan succeeds, it “threatens to upend the traditional, lucrative plumbing of e-commerce and would likely be the most mainstream application yet of cryptocurrency.” As we have stated, it’s all about the “apps.” Read the full report @ WSJ

U.S. VP Pence Asks Fed To Stimulate the “Best Economy Ever”

During a CNBC interview last week, U.S. Vice President Mike Pence reached into the realm of comic relief when he said: “There’s no inflation happening here. The economy is roaring. This is exactly the time not only to not raise interest rates, but we ought to consider cutting them.” The Trump administration clearly wants QE3 and has called for it on numerous occasions. Of course, slashing interest rates will only cause the current “everything” bubble to grow even larger before it inevitably bursts. (WSJ)

Aurora Cannabis (ACB) Stages 50 DMA Pullback On Quiet Volume

After an explosive run from just under $5 per share at the start of 2019 to more than $10 in March, ACB has cooled off and is consolidating its massive gains just above its 50 DMA. Now, the stock is finding support at that level for the first time since its January breakout.

Disclosure: Jerry Robinson personally own shares of ACB with a long-term time horizon.

Bitcoin Nears $6,000 Resistance; Retakes $100B Market Cap

The bull market in Bitcoin (and cryptocurrency in general) continued its run last week with the world's most popular cryptocurrency retaking its $100 billion market cap for the first time this year. Meanwhile, Bitcoin prices are edging closer towards a major resistance level (former support) of $6,000. We remain bullish on the cryptocurrency space as long-term investors and expect more bullish price action ahead.

#	Name	Market Cap
1	 Bitcoin	$103,500,721,664
2	 Ethereum	$17,981,876,343
3	 XRP	$13,107,932,208
4	 Bitcoin Cash	$5,247,032,135
5	 Litecoin	$4,949,371,166

VIDEO: Charting the Markets w/ Jerry Robinson

With the S&P dancing at a new all-time high, albeit on fairly weak volume, trading coach Jerry Robinson encourages members to remain nimble, with a reminder of the potential danger of holding a position too long on evaporating volume. Also, he shares several stocks/ETFs he's watching closely right now, including an exciting opportunity that offers long-term exposure to the burgeoning domestic Chinese market.

S&P 500 Index - Commentary

The S&P 500 index remains in a confirmed Position uptrend and remains supported by a new Long-Term uptrend. The S&P 500 rose 0.2% last week as the index closed near a new all-time high. The S&P 500 closed the week at $2945, just below its recent all-time high. After tumbling last Fall on global growth concerns and fears of rising U.S. interest rates, the index has finally clawed its way back to the levels it reached in September 2018. This year, the index has posted its best start to a year in more than two decades as the Federal Reserve continues to hold off on its intended interest rate hike plan to boost rates back to normalized levels. Last week's FOMC meeting left some investors believing that the Fed has no plans to cut interest rates, however, after Fed Chair Jerome Powell described the current low rate of U.S. core inflation as "transitory." (Read: temporary) Turning to earnings season, around 75% of S&P 500 companies have already reported and many have beaten analyst estimates... (Keep reading)
