Silver Mining Stocks Soar As Silver Enters New Uptrend

Since issuing a new uptrend alert on physical silver on July 12, silver mining stocks have roared higher. Last week, our top-ranked silver mining stocks (according to our Smartscore ranking system) all enjoyed double-digit gains.

Fortuna Silver Mines (FSM) surged an astounding 33% last week, followed by First Majestic Silver (AG), which jumped 27%. Wheaton Precious Metals (WPM) jumped nearly 11% as the Global X Silver Miners ETF (SIL) rose nearly 9%.

SMARTSCORE METHODOLOGY

HOW WE IDENTIFY OUR WEEKLY LIST OF THE TOP-RANKED STOCKS

OUR PROPRIETARY "SMARTSCORE" SYSTEM RANKS
STOCKS BASED ON SEVEN KEY CRITERIA:

1 NEW INSTITUTIONAL BUYING

We consider it bullish if financial institutions begin making new purchases of a stock.

2 EXISTING INSTITUTIONAL BUYING

We consider it bullish if financial institutions are adding to their existing positions in a stock.

3 HIGH PROFITABILITY (NET INCOME)

The higher the net income, the higher we rank the stock.

4 HIGH/STABLE EPS

Companies with high and stable earnings per share over the last 12 months achieve a higher rank.

5 LOW TOTAL LIABILITIES

We penalize companies within our ranking system that carry excessive debt loads and prefer low debt levels.

6 STRONG INSIDER BUYING

We consider it bullish if corporate executives (insiders) are actively purchasing the stock.

7 HIGH QUARTERLY EPS ESTIMATES

Those companies which have higher EPS estimates for the upcoming quarter get a boost in our ranking system.

G7 Nations Move To Establish Global Crypto Payments Network

A new report from Reuters last week confirmed that the Japanese government will lead the Western G7 nations in establishing a new “international network for cryptocurrency payments, similar to the SWIFT network used by banks, in an effort to fight money laundering.” It only took 10 years for Western nations to get their act together and to begin planning the creation of such a network based on digital currencies. Despite the G7’s move to create a global crypto payments network, it will not actually be in place for several more years, proving the West is further behind the curve than even we expected.

Meanwhile, China has already moved firmly into the digital currency space with almost half the world’s digital payments in 2017 being made in China. The new crypto payment network envisioned by G7 nations, and even the new crypto project being proposed by Facebook, are still far behind the technological advances already being made in China.

It has become customary in the 21st century for Western nations, especially the U.S., to fall behind China in promulgating and advancing key technologies. This concern was recently raised by David Marcus (head of Facebook’s Calibra project, which is spearheading their new Libra currency) during his prepared remarks before the House Financial Services Committee last week, when he said: “I believe that if America does not lead innovation in the digital currency and payments area, others will. If we fail to act, we could soon see a digital currency controlled by others whose values are dramatically different.”

Market Commentary by Jerry Robinson

The S&P 500 index remains in a strong Position uptrend and continues to be supported by a Long-Term uptrend. The S&P 500 index fell more than 1% last week on rising volume as investors attempted to digest conflicting information from the New York Fed and rising tensions in the Persian Gulf. First, investors were rightly confused last week after New York Fed President (and voting FOMC member) John Williams suggested that the Fed may need to “act quickly” to lower interest rates as it is “better to take preventative measures than wait for disaster to unfold.” Such stark language led investors to assume a more aggressive rate cut (50 basis points) may be in store at the upcoming July 30-31 FOMC policy meeting. However, a NY Fed spokesperson soon followed up on Mr. Williams’ comments by suggesting that he was speaking academically, and not about actual policy. The ensuing confusion obviously led to gyrations in equity prices. Additionally, tensions between Iran and Western... \(Keep reading\)

S&P 500 Slips Below 3000 As Selling Pressure Rises

The S&P 500 slipped below 3000 on Friday after recently rallying above that key psychological area.

Despite the pullback, the market still remains poised to continue its bullish march with an increasingly accommodative Federal Reserve. However, rising geopolitical tensions could thwart more gains in the near-term.

The index closed at $2976 on Friday. Year-to-date, the index has risen 19%. Read more
