Futures Market Predicts 100% Chance of Fed Rate Cut Next Week

Target Rate Probabilities for 31 Jul 2019 Fed Meeting

Global Central Banks Are Moving To Slash Interest Rates

While investors still expect the Federal Reserve to cut interest rates for the first time in a decade at this month's FOMC policy meeting (July 30,31), Australia and South Korea have already begun slashing rates at their most recent meetings. In fact, the growing list of central banks that have recently cut interest rates is rising quickly and includes New Zealand, India, Malaysia, the Philippines, and Indonesia, to name a few. So too, the European Central Bank (ECB) announced last week its intention to lower interest rates for the first time since 2016. The rate cuts, which would be Europe's first since 2016, would drive already negative interest rate levels even further into negative territory. In addition to lower interest rates, the ECB also hinted at a new round of quantitative easing (QE) in the form of bond purchases. According to ECB chief, Mario Draghi, the economic outlook "is getting worse and worse." We expect global monetary easing to continue in the coming months.

The Storm is Coming: 22 Trillion Reasons To Get Financially Prepared

Last week, the U.S. House of Representatives passed a $324 billion budget deal along with a two-year debt ceiling extension, which should theoretically delay any government debt default until after the 2020 elections. That's good news for President Trump, but it's bad news for the U.S. taxpayers, who are already saddled with a mounting $22 trillion national debt. (That's around $183,000 of Federal government debt per taxpayer!) America's twin deficits are exploding higher as Washington appears to be casting off all restraint in its pillaging of the public treasury. Excess on Wall Street reigns supreme as the derivative bubble continues to expand at a dangerous pace. Meanwhile, personal debt is climbing rapidly. Mortgage, student loan and credit card debt levels are all at or near record highs. From the White House to Wall Street and down to Main Street, Americans are continuing to specialize in consumption, not production. It should be obvious that none of this will end well. Do you have a financial plan to weather the inevitable economic storm?

Market Commentary by Jerry Robinson

The S&P 500 index remains in a strong Position uptrend and continues to be supported by a Long-Term uptrend. The S&P 500 index closed at a fresh all-time high on Friday ahead of next week's Federal Reserve's highly anticipated policy meeting (July 30, 31) where officials are widely expected to cut U.S. interest rates for the first time in a decade. As of last Thursday, the futures market indicated an 81% probability of a 25 basis point rate cut at the meeting with a much smaller 19% probability of a 50 basis point rate cut. I am personally expecting a 25 basis point rate cut and expect even more rate cuts in 2019. Weakening economic growth figures are helping build the case for lower interest rates from the Fed. On Friday, the Federal government released its Q2 GDP growth figures, revealing that the economy expanded at a tepid 2.1% annual rate during the prior three months. Meanwhile, investment slipped by 5.5% last quarter despite promises of rising investment in the wake of the $1.5 trillion tax cuts... \(Keep reading\)

The S&P 500 rose 1.63% last week after managing to hold above the key psychological area of $3000. The market appears poised to continue its bullish march with an increasingly accommodative Federal Reserve.

Cannabis Stocks Having Tough Summer; Still Up YTD

The cannabis industry has had a tough summer after being rocked by a series of scandals amid continuing regulatory deadlock.

We issued a new Long-Term uptrend alert on MJ and added it to both our P.A.C.E. and Trailblazer ETF portfolio back on January 11 at $31.06. While the ETF rose 26% from that alert within two months, it peaked in March and has been falling ever since. We issued a new Long-Term downtrend alert and closed our position on June 14. Though MJ has fallen sharply, it is still up year-to-date.

We'll continue monitoring the industry and alert you when the next uptrend begins!
